Technical Writing Fundamentals PTW310A

How to get access to this course on Canvas:

To access this course on Canvas, you will need

- To register for this course
- Your UW NetID and password

If this is your first course at UW
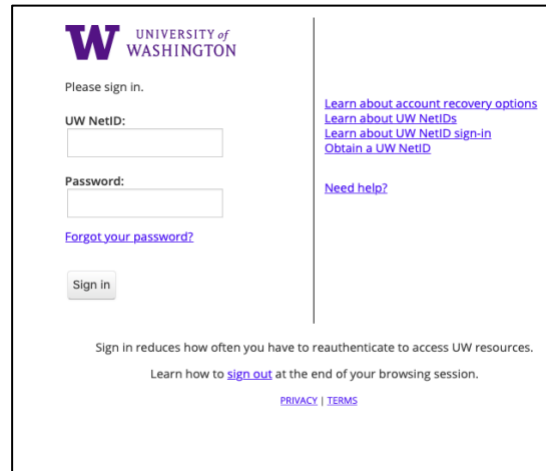

1. Register for the course first in order to create your UW NetID. Make sure to register 4 weeks prior to the course start date (September 30th) to secure your seat in the program.

2. Check your program acceptance email with the subject "Congratulations! You're In" for your registration form and details.

> You can either register by providing your credit card details and registration number (listed in registration form) to Registration Services at (206) 543-2310 or mail a check with your completed registration form to the address on the registration form. For more details, visit HOW TO REGISTER*.*

3. Save the two emails you receive after registering, which contain instructions on setting up your UW NetID and password. These emails will provide you with your student number or student system key and your private access code, which you will use upon creating your UW NetID.
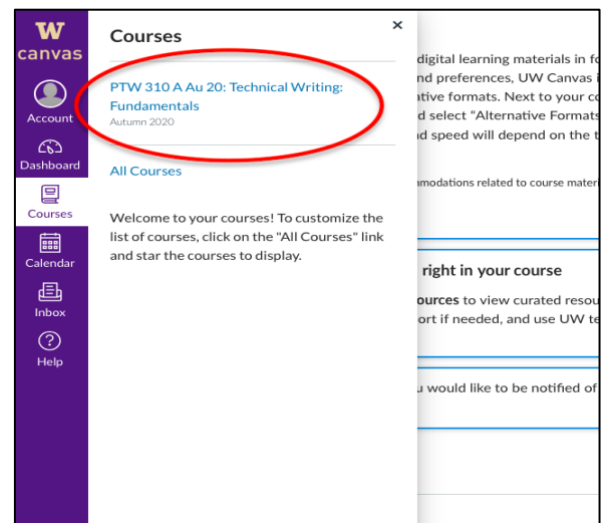

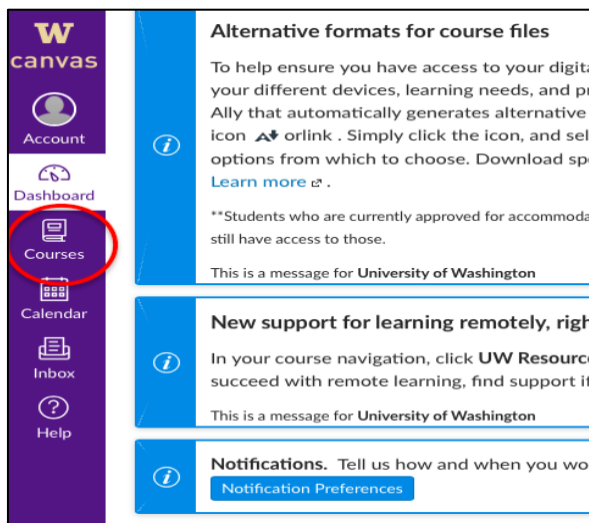

Start accessing your course

1. Your course materials should be available on Canvas approximately one week before the course start date.

2. Access your course by logging in with your UW NetID and password through the UW Canvas Link.

3. Once you reach the UW Canvas webpage, click on the "Courses" tab on the left and find this course link titled "PTW 310 A Au 20: Technical Writing: Fundamentals." Click on this course link to see your modules, assignments, discussions and other links.

4. If this course is not listed or is not made clickable and the course is set to start in a few weeks or less, contact Enrollment Services at (800) 506-1325.